

ANSIBLE: replaces Checkpoint as Britain's newszine and comes from Dave Langford, 22 Northumberland Ave, Reading, Berks RG2 7PW, UK. Rates-- 4/50p (UK, Europe), 3/£1 (US), 5/£1 (Aus, NZ).
Overseas copies airmailed. Credit given for hot news etc; trades by arrangement. (Sept 1979)

Hello, hail, greetings, iechyd da and so on. You are receiving this and the attached because:

- * You are a Checkpoint subscriber whose outstanding credit has been transferred from moribund Checkpoint to Ansible. Unless I hear from you, your last issue of Ansible will be ()
- * You are a recently lapsed Checkpoint subscriber (this is Peter's fault, no doubt---knowing CP was to fold, he hasn't asked for money lately). Surely you'd love to sign up with Ansible?
- * You are a newszine editor, more fool you. Trade?
- * You are Mike Glicksohn or Alun Harries, the first Ansible subscribers. Congratulations! Last issue:
- * You subscribed since I typed this. Even more congratulations... I would have mentioned your name, but the Time Police objected. Last issue:
- * You are a contributor, a potential contributor, a proved or potential source of scandal and lies, a Buddy or a Master, or a freeloader of some other description. Consider this section ticked unless one of the others is. Consider this as a pricking of your conscience unless you've propitiated me recently...
- * A foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds.