UP FRONT

EXCUSES, EXCUSES...

Jeepers! Well I have been diligently working on a 'zine, unfortunately it was not this one. In order to get to use Tom Feller's Bulk Mail permit one more time before it expired, the Southern Fandom Confederation Bulletin had to be completed pretty much around the same due date as Avatar Press. I'm currently in the proofing stage and had hope to get it duplicated, folded, taped, labeled, and mailed by October 1st. However, I just got e-mail from Tom Feller that he is going to Florida on October 4th so I need to get it to him as soon as possible so he can send it out Bulk Mail. Believe me, the next issue will be scheduled between issues of the Avatar Press. Whew! I am proud that I did not wait until the last minute to start the Southern Fandom Confederation Bulletin and have been working on it off and on at a steady pace. I was going to frank the issue this time but it's not in the final proof stage yet so I'll wait until next time (so I can get this 'zine out first). Fortunately, Toni Weisskopf and Julie Wall are helping me proof it. So due to the huge time demands of that and other things, there will be no Mailing Comments once again. Sigh.

RAMBLINGS

THE BELL (SOUTH) TOLLS FOR MY WEB SITE

My internet and web-site provider, BellSouth, decided to change their personal web-site support, rendering my old site invalid. The old web site address was:

<http://personal.bellsouth.net/~rbcleary>

The new web site address is:

<http://home.bellsouth.net/p/PWP-rbcleary>.

Thus, I'm currently in the middle of rebuilding my site (real soon now). I have to figure out the best way to integrate my content with the new site and its new features. It's just a shell of a site right now. I hope to make it more polished by the end of the year. (Stop laughing. It could happen.)

BIO? MORE LIKE B.O.!

Mike Rogers got me to crank out a biography for the Southern Fandom Confederation Web Site. It's pretty lame. Feel free to check it out at <http://www.southernfandom.com>. It also appears pretty much unchanged in the next issue of the Southern Fandom Confederation Bulletin if you prefer to read it in hard copy.

LESS OF A MAN

I won the most recent weight loss contest among my friends. I lost 11.5 pounds in two months and won $50 out of the entry pool. I just tried to walk more and eat less, nothing drastic. The next contest starts October 1st. I've been beefing up a little for it by not exercising and eating lots lately. Hopefully, I can finish the year down 20 to 30 pounds. I really need to make weight loss and physical conditioning my number one priority. Hopefully after ConfStellation, I'll have some more free time.

TWICE BYTE-EN...

I finally got my old (120 MHz Pentium) computer out and tried to get it working again. I had tried to upgrade it about two years ago and somehow messed it up. After much tweaking, I got close (actually with Windows 95 running but it would lock up on login). However, I eventually fiddled too much and messed it up so it would not even boot up. Luckily, my Division had a used computer sale Monday and I was able to pick up an old used Intergraph TDZ-325 for $25.00 (266 MHz Pentium II, 4 GB SCSI Disk Drive, 128 MB RAM, Intense 3D 100 Graphics Card, and network card). I needed a system that would run Windows 95 and use most of my old computer's components (disk drive, video card, sound card, modem, extra memory, etc.). I got it up and running Windows 95 on Tuesday but put it away in order to work on my 'zine. Next week, I'll try migrating my other components. I just want to have a spare computer and eventually get a card that allows me to watch TV on it so I can put it in my bedroom. My next big (expensive) computer purchase will probably be a laptop next year.

WORKING MAN'S BLUES

Work continues to be Dilbert-esque. I was going to be put on a project involving Visual BASIC and databases, which are not my favorite areas. Fortunately, it looks like I'll be working on something more interesting. However, I would prefer to work on what I'm currently doing but after this upcoming release, it seems highly doubtful. I have decided to gut it out and give the new project(s) a chance before actively looking for other avenues of endeavor.

IT CANNOT ALWAYS BE ABOUT ME

I have been to several birthday parties lately and am feeling a little old and a little like life is passing me by at times. Another gaming group member is engaged and will probably be moving to the Atlanta area next year. Two gaming group members got married this year. Right now, there are only two single guys (me and a new guy) left in the group. Most of my friends are married and/or in committed relationships and a lot have kids. The road not taken may lead to greener pastures but someone has to be the confirmed bachelor. Mixed metaphors are like an analogy of a simile.

My mom is working fewer hours now with no benefits. Hopefully when she turns 65 in November, Medicaid will help out some with her medical expenses. My oldest nephew will be 19 in November also. He is working, has a car, but is still living at home with his Mom. Supposedly, he's been slightly less of a handful now that he has his own car and stays gone most of the time. I hope maybe he's finally growing up a little. I really hope he moves out on his own as soon as possible.

CON†STELLATION

After working very hard running the art show for DeepSouthCon40, I was dreading Con†Stellation, especially since it was not going to be relaxacon as I had hoped. I have to watch those negative feelings. Soon after, we lost the original hotel. Fortunately, we now have a new one that I hope will work out better any way. Also, one of the guests that we were planning to ask passed away. Ron Walotsky always seemed like a nice gentleman whenever I saw at conventions over the years. He died way too young. We now have a full slate of guests and everything is coming together. However, it will probably be a much smaller convention due to late and less publicity. It will definitely be a smaller art show this year, due to late call for artists more than the limited physical space. This year I e-mailed over 200 artists and did not hard mail any, as time was short. The convention details are on the web site <<http://www.constellation.org/>> and in the flyer I'm including in this issue. I hope to see some of y'all there.

ANDRE NORTON VISIT

I am the Program Director for the North Alabama Science Fiction Association. Mike Cothran, who set up the visit also, suggested the September program. I just helped to organize the convoy. The program was a trip on Saturday, September 21, 2002 up to Murfreesboro, Tennessee to see High Hallack <www.andre-norton.org/highhallack>, a Genre Writers' Library, created by Andre Norton, Grand Master of Science Fiction. Altogether, we had about 12 people attend; several were members of the local writer's group. Andre Norton gave us a personal tour of the library, which is situated behind her home and originally started off as a garage (greatly expanded and nicely finished). She was very charming and it was quite educational and entertaining. She signed tons of books, gave us each a sign chapbook, and chatted extensively with everyone. It's hard to believe she's in her eighties. Afterwards, we all had a very late (around 3:00 P.M.) lunch at Randy's Steak and Seafood. It was pretty good and with a name like

"Randy's", we knew it had to be. I think everyone enjoyed the program. The next three programs will be a Con†Stellation post-modern, the annual club auction, and a holiday present exchange. After that, I'll be free of the post, as I have too much other fanac on my plate.

DRAGON*CON

I missed my first *Dragon*Con* in years last year as I went to the WorldCon instead. This year I attended. I generally had a good time but somehow ended up eating alone a lot. I guess I need to work on my social skills. Planning ahead, I had prepared several bag meals, which came in handy. I still have two left over. I stayed in the Marriott with Ben Acosta and Jeff and Amanda Freeman. The main event hotel was the Hyatt but the Dealers Room and Art Show and Art Panels were in the Marriott. Jeff and Amanda live near Atlanta so only really stayed overnight one time, so I had a bed to myself the other times. The last night, we stayed up until 5:30 A.M. and I ended up sleeping on the floor. *Dragon*Con* was a huge event as always but it seem a little less energetic than in years pass, but maybe it's just me that's less energetic. Here are a few of the pictures that I took.

DOWN BACK

UPCOMING

Julie Wall is coming up to see Big Spring Jam (outdoor music concerts all weekend on multiple stages downtown) in Huntsville this weekend. Hopefully the rain and having to get the Southern Fandom Confederation Bulletin shipped will not put too much of a damper on it.

I hope to attend the David Weber book signing on October 10, 2002 in Birmingham. Also, ConfStellation is in October and hopefully will be more fun than work. Then there's the Florence Renaissance Fair the next weekend, which is usually pleasant. November looks wide open at the moment, so I hope to get some artwork and house work done.

ART FRONT

I am not currently taking any classes, as I've been too busy. Likewise, I've not been doing any figure drawing. I sent some copies of my clip art to Lloyd Penny for possible use by the Ditto convention. I have done some sketches, an illo for Toni Weisskopf, and a cover for the next issue of the Southern Fandom Confederation Bulletin. Here is the cover, reduced to half size. The title is "Vermeer Girl with Magic Hand" and is modeled after Vermeer's "Girl with Pearl Earring" painting.

Well, take care until next time. I hope everyone enjoys the Fall.

Sincerely,

Randy B. Cleary
