

DAGON 73

19 October 1968

MORE THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

"A niggah sheriff - the folks over there just ain't gonna stand for any kind o of stuff such as that. When those Anglo-Saxon people get stirred up, boy, they don't mess around. Wouldn't one of them niggahs last thirty minutes if he was to have the misfortune of gettin' elected." - George C. Wallace, quoted by Marshall Frady, Wallace

"If I had my choice, I'd rather get killed by nuclear weapons." - Curtis E. Le May, New York Post, 3 October 1968

"If an anarchist lies down in front of my automobile when I become President, it will be the last automobile he will ever want to lie down in front of...I think they ought to be jerked away and put under a good jail and treated and manhandled pre'ty roughly." - George C. Wallace, New York Times, 5 October 1968

"If I found it necessary, I would use anything that we could dream up - anything that we could dream up - including nuclear weapons." - Curtis E. Le May, New York Times, 4 October 1968

"Let me make one - Let me make one more statement. Wait a minute now. Let me - Let me make sure you've got this straight." - Curtis E. Le May, ibid.

"We must be willing to continue our bombing until we have destroyed every work of man in North Vietnam is this is what it takes to win the war." - Curtis E. Le May, America in Danger

"I think that the intervention in Vietnam was required." - Hubert H. Humphrey, April 1968. Quoted in New York Daily World, 12 October 1968

"Vance J. Beaudreau, who heads George Wallace's American Party and his campaign in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas was disclosed to have been an active member of the American Nazi Party in Dallas from 1965-66. He was promoted for the job by Bard Logan, state chairman of Wallace's party. Logan is also a prominent member of the John Birch Society...Beaudreau was at one time bodyguard for the late George Lincoln Rockwell." - St. Louis Globe-Democrat, 9 October 1968 & New York Daily World, 12 October 1968.

"They maneuvered us into fighting the enemies of Communism back during World War Two. The Germans and the Japanese were a mighty brave people...I'm sorry it was necessary for us to fight against those anti-Communist nations. I thought so back then. Hell, we should have been in those trenches with the Germans...fightin' them Bolsheviks." - Curtis E. Le May, Saturday Evening Post, 29 June 1968

"I do not think we can realistically look forward in the foreseeable future to an end to the draft." - Hubert H. Humphrey, Civil Liberties (ACLU), October 1968

"If you've seen one city slum, you've seen them all." - Spiro Agnew, New York Post, 19 October 1968

"This is a great adventure, and a wonderful one it is." - Hubert H. Humphrey on his recent trip to Vietnam, quoted in Fellowship (FOR), January 1968

"Many people feel today, they say, that we should not be in Vietnam. Well, whether we should or not, we are. And we have been there a long time. So I am not going to argue about whether we should have been there." - Hubert H. Humphrey, New York Times, 26 April 1966

"Perhaps we can get George Wallace on our side. That's where he belongs." - Howard Callaway, Southern Regional Coordinator for Richard Nixon, before the Mississippi Republican Convention of 1968. Quoted Group Research Report, 16 October 1968

"I think the civil rights revolution went too far the day the revolution began." - Spiro Agnew, "Face the Nation", quoted New York Post, 22 October 1968

"The Governor of Georgia is a good Democrat. The Democratic Party is like a big house. It has lots of room for all of us." - Hubert H. Humphrey, New York Times, 15 April 1967

"Like the Vice President was saying, the Democratic Party is like a big house that has plenty of room for all of us." - Lester Maddox, ibid.

"Mr. Wallace...is being haunted by a statement last year that was printed in the Times of London. The newspaper quoted him as having said that Southerners, like the British, were Anglo-Saxons, but that the North was populated by 'Poles, Italians, Germans, and other lesser breeds.'" - New York Times, 3 April 1964. See also editorial, Milwaukee Journal, 22 March 1964

"I believe in the right of free speech, but not if it disrupts the morale of the troops." - George Wallace quoted in East Village Other, 1 December 1967

"William F. Buckley Jr. is sure Nixon is the best man for President. Says: 'He's the most competent man since President Hoover.'" - New York Daily Column, 14 July 1968

"In Boston today, when a newsman seemed to question the idea of a large standing professional army, General Lemay said this was 'a typical left-wing stand', one that 'bordered on a Communist stand' aimed at shaking the nation's confidence in its Army and police." - New York Times, 24 October 1968.

*

And so it goes on. The three candidates of the Nixon-Humphrey-Wallace ticket have been swamping the country with their attacks on our most fundamental liberties. Whichever one of these indistinguishable men is elected, we are in for a hard four years.

As an example of their mendacity, Richard Nixon's team has been circulating a TV commercial featuring one Rob Norsworthy, a "democrat for Nixon". Norsworthy was a volunteer worker for a Republican Senatorial candidate in Michigan in 1966, and was a key aide in Governor Romney's abortive campaign for the presidency last year. He is currently campaign manager for a Republican congressional candidate in Michigan. Yet Nixon is trying to pass him off as a disgruntled Democrat among his supporters. (See the New York Post, 23 October 1968 for details.

Other examples of tripartite lies appear in DAGON #75.

DAGON, in case you wondering, is put out whenever there seems to be something to say. These days, most of the things to say have to do with the preposterous situation in which three pro-war candidates are running for the presidency of an anti-war country. These issues of DAGON are being mailed out with LEFTOVERS #5, the publication of which was delayed for reasons described in DAGON #70. LEFTOVERS and DAGON are published by John Boardman, 592 16th Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. 11218, USA. This publication is not edited under the supervision of Tangs Leslie Tapscott.

This is O At
I Great
E Interval
R This
A Appears
T To
I Inflamm
O Optic
N Nerves

379