1. Good news. We have a librarian for Middletown. Bruce Szablak, MT 4C-418, x5868 has volunteered. Bruce will be on vacation the first half of August, and I expect we can get the library going shortly after he gets back. (I have to apologize here that I am not organizing it faster, but I am just getting back after having been gone for five and a half weeks and I am digging my way out of all that has accumulated in that time.) Right now the set of books we have is small, but I expect that we can work something out with the Holmdel and Lincroft club libraries to get a reasonable collection here. Thanks, Bruce, for volunteering.

2. WLIW, Channel 21, is finishing its run of the series THE SANDBAGGERS and beginning it again starting July 22. SANDBAGGERS was a British TV series that ran for one season. I like spy fiction and spy films and I have to say that at least half of the episodes rank among the best spy films I have seen. If you like anything in spy fiction from Fleming to LeCarre and if you can get WLIW. where you live, you WANT to see the series. You may not know it yet, but take my word for it, you really want to see this series. If you like spy stories at all, this TV series is one of the best things you will ever see on television. If you don't get Channel 21, but have a friend that does, why not start thinking about some nice gift you can give that friend? Seriously, if you watch the first episode, you will probably watch the whole series, and you won't be sorry you did. This message is a public service.

I have to say that if I had to pick the three TV series that I least would have wanted to miss an episode of, SANDBAGGERS would be on the list.
