Introduction

For those with a Fanzine Collection (or access to one), but without an encyclopedic memory, indexes to the contents of fanzines — especially the more important fanzines containing the less-ephemeral material — would sometimes be useful, but if any such indexes have been published, I've not heard of them. If The TimeBinders' current ideas about preserving these publications on microfiche or CD-ROM disks are ever carried out, such indexes will be even more useful, so I've begun undertaking the task of indexing a few (defined as: more than three but less than a dozen), beginning with Mimosa because it is of importance in its emphasis on fan history, it is one of my top favorites, and I happened to be able to find all but one issue (which was kindly supplied by Dick and Nicki).

With the aid of a computer, constructing and maintaining a cumulative index is relatively easy (though time-consuming if one is impelled to re-read all of the material) — I'm using FileMaker Pro 2.1, on a Macintosh Centris 650, and expect to publish up-dated versions from time to time ... and perhaps improved ones, as well, since I'm a computer neo and haven't yet figured out how to (among other things) get digits to sort properly, nor am I sure that more Subject references should not have been included. Helpful suggestions and criticisms will, of course, be greatly appreciated. Copies of this and other (in the future) indexes will be available for about the cost of xerocopying and postage, maybe rounded up to the next even dollar, or for fanzines in trade.
