

The electric game has been delayed, do to removing and decorating
 one. 2962 Santa Ana St. I believe you mentioned being not unfamiliar with South Gate, Calif. though I'm just passed 28, my mother lives in doing my room her way. I had converted my present
 July 17, 1955 USA
 years.

Eric, I agree the game maybe funny, but I have been thinking of it for about three years, and would like to get it for about three years, and would like to get it for about three years, and would like to get it
 The two-way switch wouldn't work, as each side would have to be
 Dear Harry & Eric:

Tell me, did I sound goshwowooyoboy to you..?
 I guess it was the mood I was in at the time.. Drunk on some emotional release or something... I'd planed, when N&T#4 came to discuss it play-like, with my three sided ego..but this better wate.

The first thing I want to bring up is the facts behind
 "Is it true about Scottish girls?" Firstly, as a personal habit
 I usually think of any attractive woman, who still looks young, as a girl.. No matter if she is 35, and has four kids.. This viewpoint is incouraged by such ladies as I know that are 30ish and/or married.. Thus, "girls", ment any attractive Scottswoman.
 So there, Eric.

Next, the question was inspired by the picture with FAN LOVE.
 That the other been was reprinted from Scottishe, lead me to guess that the girl was Scottish.. No basds behind that I know, but thoughts jump like that attimes. Beside, the pose reminded me of the charming unconcern of one of two Scottish laases I have known.. It struck me that maybe it was a national trate..
 I really didn't expect you to know what I ment, but I didn't think it would be polite to ask if most Scottish girls showed their panties when they sat down... I didn't really think they did... which, in view of Eric's enlighten article, snows how little I did know.

In regard the article, which is real great, we have a problem...
 Infact, enough problems to keep a normal fanclub fighting all night.
 (A). I am not going to be an editor after all.. I was going to put out The Outlander #13, because I was going to the 8th Westeron, and wanted to print a Con-report.. I got sick just before the conference, missed it, so no conreport.. Also, as only one other piece of material was on hand, there seemed no reason to put out #13..
 Especially as #12 was two months late, and not out yet... (B)
 One of our foundest founders married a Scott's girl. (she is not the one I had in mind). So, I, and the one other male member I have shown it to# feel it wouldn't be something or other.. Were-as our wife and girlfriend (one each)((that is, there are one each of them))
 (((And one for each of us.))) say to print it, and that we are making a mole hill out of a fine tale... --- So, I'm sending it along to the editor, and may his ward be final... --- If he doesn't want it, I will return, but I'm sure I can place it in a any one of a number of zines.. Ones that frankly have better readership than
 TO.

The electric game has been delayed, do to removing and decorating one room to the next.. I believe you mentioned being not unfamilure with the operation. My trouble, though I'm just passed 28, my Mother still believes in doing my room her way. I had converted my present one to a reasonable combanation fan-den and bedroom, but it took years.

Eric, I agree the game maybe lousy, but I have been thinking of it for about three years, and would like to get it out of my system. The two-way switches wouldn't work, as eather side would have eaqual change of scoring.ow I'm afraid I didn't explain it clearly enough. A friend of ominer who is a electronics major drew up the schematic drawing. So once I get the parts, the hookup will be easy.

I'd like to clear up a few things. I must have 'dropped out' of fandom on a active level about the time you returned, so to you I'm a new fan.. My spelling is do to the fact I've had asthma, or other forms of ill health, a good part of my life, and couldn't attend regular schools. (No lab science, for one thing). I've been around fandom since tearly 1945, the only name I've ever made was a result of my bad spelling, and my joining... Lots of time, so I joined and ran for office in practally everthing. A couple years ago my health improved enough to start working and leading a fairly normal life. Took most of my time and iterest, so like many others, I put fandom aside. I must have over did something, as I caught pneumonia last Fall, and have been all this time getting my strength back, so to pass the inforced idelness, I've brushed up some of my old fannish contacts. --- Yes, and while only 14 at the time we went into the war, I can remember it fairly well. Though naturally the Pacific operation was of major interest to me.

Now, what did you mean Eric, by, "an offence against social conventions, like quoting Abraham Lincoln and meaning it."? I grant you there is a great deal of hypocrisy in goverment, and in the muddled masses. Probably more in ours than yours.. Or atleast ours make more noise. As a liberal type thinker, I think that there are still some of us that value the things he spoke fore.. True, we aren't in the best circles, but we are still here. --- But, well, that is a pretty loaded remark to fling in anyones face!. Not all Americans are rich, support McCarthy, drive Cadillac, and try to push people around.. --- Damn fine article though.

..EN&T, 4 Was good.. Not as good as 3, but it was smaller!. And yours isn't really a packaged product.. One sorrow was that so little space was devoted to the GENERAL MEETING.. It is personal taste, but I'd rather read of real fan doings, to fiction. And Willis, his own self, fails to mention it in "..." A slight? To me anyway... I like travel-logs, fan style. Apple billikens sound like something that I'd like to see spressed.. It must be true that Americans have no imagination in their cooking.. I simply can't imagine this.. But then up untell yesterday I imagined that all curries had to have rice in them. It might be safe to go to India after all...

Well, another 85F. today, so to tub and to bed!
And Remember Wake Island!