EVERYONE HAS HOBBIES...

and one of mine just happens to be the egoboo poll. Don't ask me why. It's just that every ten years or so, about twice the gestation period of SF FIVE-YEARLY, I get this funny sort of urge... The net result so far has been a compilation of the egoboo poll results for the ten years just completed.

This began as THE RAMBLING FAF 21, FAPA 90, February 1960, which covered the ten year period 1949-58. Since to the casual observer that would not seem to be any sort of regular decade or period of any specific importance, a logical question at this time might be "Why 1949-58?" combined with "Why ten years?" As questions go, those aren't bad.

Ten years ago I was mid-way through a project called WHO ZOOM IN FAPA (an incomplete version of which finally appeared in the 98th mailing) which was intended to be a short biographical sketch on all current FAPA members. Since data for the WHO ZOO had to be garnered from the individual members by means of question sheets, naturally I was having a hard time of it. I had data on only 28 FAPA members--and of course I fully expected to hear from all 65. (I settled, two years later, for 34.) To sort of pass the time, I guess, I decided to compile the results of a number of previous egoboo polls just for the hell of it. The oldest FANTASY AMATEUR that I have in my files is for the 50th mailing and that happens to contain the poll results for 1949. By chance, I discovered that a page typed horizontally was just wide enough to comfortably hold five columns of typing if each were about the length of an average person's name. Two pages for each category, faced together...voila! ten years, 1949-58! The average person's name, by the bye, is not Phyllis Economou nor is it Norman Wansborough, for which boon I am properly appreciative.

I suppose that, things being what they are, 1980 will find me still sitting here typing up the results of yet another ten-year span. One of these days, though, I'd like to improve on this. The first effort plus this one could both stand to be proof-read and corrected, for one thing--for another, I'd like to catch up on the results of earlier egoboo pools for which I presently have no data. Perhaps by 1980 I'll have the ability to compile all of the poll results up to that date and do it right! And now please turn to the last page of this issue for some fascinating behind-the-scenes information...

NOTE: In 1959, 1960 and 1961 there were two categories in the egoboo poll, one for best poetry and one for best fiction. In 1962 and the years following, these categories were combined into one under the heading of best fiction and poetry. In the 1968 poll the two categories were separated once again.

NOTE: In 1959 and 1960 there were categories for both best editor and best layout and make-up. Both categories were dropped in 1961 in favor a new title, best single issue or one-shot. In 1962-68 the two categories were revived and combined under best editor/publisher, layout and make-up.

A DDENDA

Being mostly a collection of things I intended to tell you on the first page before I got carried away.

In the standings, ties are indicated by "=" and "+" where necessary. That is, all names prefaced with the same symbol are tied for that place. The fewer the voters in any given poll, the greater the tendency for ties. As you can see from my unofficial BEST EGOBOO POLL VOTERS category, we tend to have a lot of ties. Not too many FAPAns voted five or more times in the last ten years.

A short summary, year by year: 1959 was an excellent voting year with probably the most meaningful results. Phyllis Economou did a great job tabulating the results of 44 ballots. In 1960, Eney published a special issue carrying the poll results in the best job of displaying the results that I have ever seen. Bill Evans did a neat job in 1961 and I especially appreciated his continuation of the numbering system through ties--i.e., a three-way tie for 10th place used up places 10, 11 and 12. Gregg Calkins followed Evans' lead in 1962, but I've since caught his tabulation in two errors...shame! 1963--Buz & Elinor--neat and compact job. Jim Caughran (1964), I have a bone to pick with you. Traditionally, non-member standings are listed right in with the members, not grouped at the end. The categories are for the best in FAPA, not the best contributions by FAPAns. It was a chore to put the non-members back in their proper places and I hope I didn't make too many errors in the process. (But I probably did.) The worst results, from my point of view, were from the 1965 poll by Rick Sneary. Apparently--from the comments by Bruce Pelz, then OE--Rick volunteered to stencil the results and then did not. Pelz rather grumpily typed them on stencil, but since he felt it was a waste of time, effort and O-O space stencilling poll results in which only ten members voted (a well-taken point, perhaps) he did not bother to format the tabulations. I can't really blame Bruce, but it made my tabulation job sheer hell on the eyes and helped me to make two major errors in this compilation, for which I apologize. These were in the BEST PUBLICATION and BEST SINGLE ISSUE OR ONE-SHOT categories--I couldn't pick something simple or relatively unimportant--and are listed on page 3 under "Errata." The 1966 results by Lee Jacobs occasion no comment in particular--neatly done and intelligible. Bill Evans' 1967 results were neatly done but do not contain a single vote for a non-member for some reason. Were there none, Bill, or did you omit them? I also think the "Top Ten" standings should have been listed individually rather than accumulating husband-wife memberships. The Moffatts in 1968 also omitted non-members, although I have to agree with their logical conclusion that votes cast for publications which did not appear in nor were postmailed to the FAPA mailings were meaningless. My conclusion from this somewhat lengthy paragraph is that both the poll sheets and categories and the tabulation of the poll results in the FA would not be harmed by a little standardization. It would make comparisons more meaningful, at least.

On one page I listed the Officialdom for 1959-70. I remember that Ellik once did this for the entire history of FAPA to that date but I can't seem to find his results. If anyone will loan them to me, I'll be happy to keep the list up to date. I think a couple of items worthy of note: (1) Bill Evans' long history of service from Mailing 77 (1956) to the present except for a four-mailing rest in 1965-66, during which time he was President twice, Veep twice, and S/T no less than nine (9!) times; (2) Redd Boggs and Bob Pavlat have held all four offices at various times, a feat I cannot find duplicated elsewhere in my limited files. Have any other FAPA members performed this hat trick?
