Cousin Guy's Early Bird Stats (through the SFPA #231)

Ned Brooks adds to his impressive Early Bird Stats, making him the Babe Ruth of this category, without a doubt. Of course, he is a retiree with little else to do but crank out apazines at a moment's notice. I should repeat that these statistics are, for the most part, incomplete.

For the first time in several years, we have three people averaging 30 pages or more per mailing — and if the author of this zine had managed just 5 more pages over the last year, we'd have four. I believe that there has been a few times since I've started doing the Box Scores that we had four people with 30 pages-plus. This coming despite a smallish mailing last time out. Actually, most members maintained or added to their totals this time around, if even by a scant few pages. Meanwhile, David Schlosser slips a page and drops below the double digit mark.
