

There was going to be a SFPazine this time. Really, there was.

Well, there isn't.

We're broke and running scared and right now the phone is shut off and i'm trying to figure out how to pay the bill and get it back on and pay the rent and the electric bill for the next month...

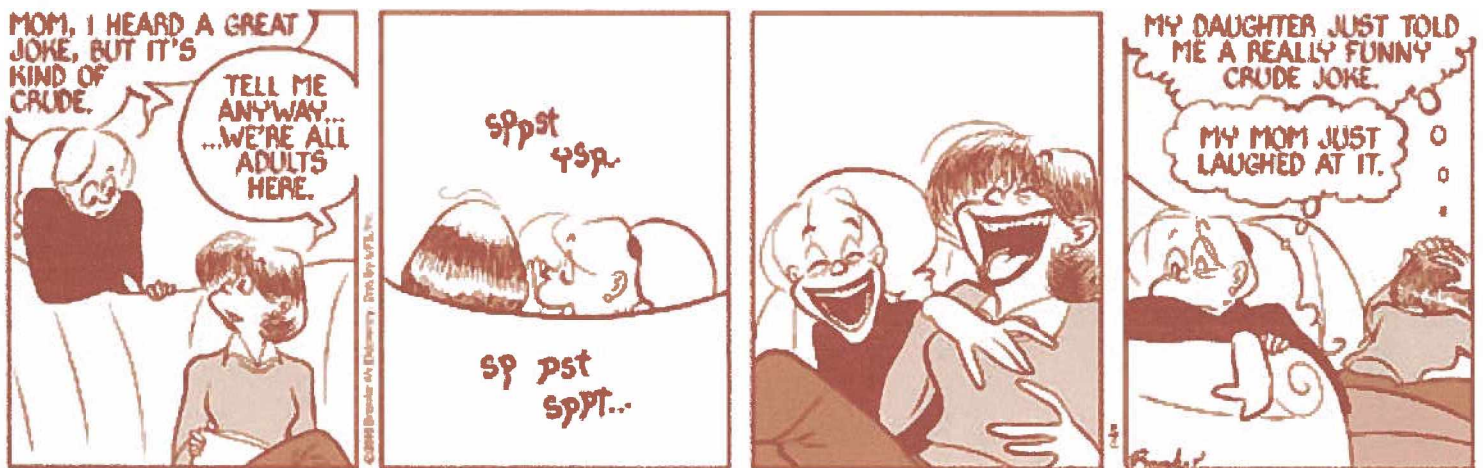

I'm working at Wolf Photo, making Not Much, and Kate is starting a part-time job in a convenience store, making Even Less, and hoping to get a second part-time job as well.

The new engine we put in the car a while back is okay, but the work installing it was shoddily done, resulting in a near-$500 expenditure and still more needing to be done when we have money. If ever.

There is like twelve pages in the computer, but i can't afford the paper and ink to print it out this month.

Maybe next mailing.

Crude Joke

A Page from mike weber
for the January SFPA mailing.