

The Zine With No Title
by George H. Wells

CHAPTER TWO:

How is everyone? I am fine. Actually I am not.
I have been through the valley of smelly camels, away from Jerusalem, across the hot non-slimy dry uninteresting desert, toward the jungle of THE PHANTOM, the Ghost who Walks, (Or is it:
The Wantom, The Post who Haunts; or is it: the Handsome, the worst that polks; or is it The Wampum, the Host with the Most to Hawk and Hucksters, taking our Money for Used Books that Nobody but US FANS would pay money for.....??????).
NEXT MAILING, yes, it's always NEXT MAILING I will fulfill all your desires for mailing comments and feedback. I'll even feed you mallow condiments while you lie on your backs.
Remember the good old days...
movies like Mallowmars Need Women; A Fist Full of CHUCKLES;
the Almond Joys of the Crab Monsters....
gotta go.....

Note:
Ch. 1 (one)
was lost.

Robert here: been awhile since you were seen anywhere by me; your picture in the recent CHALLENGER shows me a man I miss. I'm doing fine. I've been kind of married for 22 years. My son is eight and a half. I have two dogs, too many mice, an eighteen acre farm a big drafty house and too many stories to tell. I'm tempted to do an e-zine. Ever get a hold of that bio of the director who did the "scarm" movie....just wonderin' here...

My deafness isn't good for phone calls; while it hasn't gotten worse, the phone lines down here have never gotten better. Send an apazine or two. I'll write short notes and a line or two from now and then. Getting to this year's worldcon? :: I've been using the internet to sell off portions of my collection--which has gotten out of hand and there's just too much.:: The dogs were just fighting under my feet. :: My son is out watching an old "Astro Boy" tape. Ever catch REBOOT on the Cartoon Network? My son says it's "way cool"; I like it a lot. Try to find it and tape a handful of episodes. I understand you use your job and your email is there. So this isn't too long.

Dear George: you spend $100 on books for your Mom in law? My mother gets books too, but she always haunts thrift stores and doesn't spend more than 50 cents a throw. She got most of Stephen King and Robert McCammon's output along with some Dan Simmons...odd that she would focus on writers like that at her age. :: Leo currently has what he wants--wants more--but I put off a lot of things, because we horde old items. He's getting a view of the recent Digimon film (2/3's a good film) this weekend since I found a cheap dvd of it. Also likes Godzilla, Reboot, Earthworm Jim, Warner Brothers, etc. No shortage of toons. :: His reading is sporadic. He claims he can't read certain things, but will plow through a book about Pokemon, pronounce the 10 letter words and come up with conclusions he could only surmise by collecting the information. He's easily distracted. :: Life was difficult when my car caught on fire, and I spent the night in it waiting for the sun to rise because no one would tow me until 7AM. I put the fire out. The temp. was 20 degrees. Drank a bit of coffee from a nearby store until 1 AM when they threw me out. Don't know how street people do it. :: The garage wasn't happy, since it was the part they'd just replaced that caught on fire...replace for free...: Am reading the autobiography of Daniel Keyes, which tells how he put together FLOWERS FOR ALGERNON . Good humane book. Human and decent. Leo's looking forward to seeing MONKEYBONE
