General Membership is $15 per year for adults, $1 for children (see form on the last page of this issue). Subscribing membership is $1 for each remaining month in the calendar year, counting from the time that you begin your subscription. SFSFS General Meeting for March:

An Interview with Roger Zelazny!

Date: Saturday, March 19th, 1994

Time: 2:00 p.m.

Location: Fort Lauderdale Airport Hilton, Conference Suite [this may change, please check at the ICFA Info Desk in hotel]

Directions: Take I-95 to Griffin Road. The hotel is visible from I-95; just east of the highway.

For our March program, SFSFS is delighted to have renowned author, Roger Zelazny, as our guest. Join us at the Fort Lauderdale Airport Hilton, for a group interview led by Joe Siclari. Mr. Zelazny is this year's Special Guest at the International Conference on the Fantastic in the Arts, and has made time in his busy schedule to talk with us.
Among Mr. Zelazny's most famous works are the Amber series, his 1966 Hugo winning novel ...And Call Me Conrad (aka This Immortal), Lord Of Light,
"The Doors of His Face, The Lamps of His Mouth", and "A Rose for Ecclesiastes" (the only story ever to get a wrap around cover in Fantasy & Science Fiction. Artwork by Hannes Bok.).

If you get to only one SFSFS program this year, this is the one to be at!

Notes from the Chairman:

Last month we had an extraordinarily active meeting. The brainstorming on world creation raised some interesting ideas and even a few eyebrows and tempers as we all pitched in to create a utopia. I hope Shirlene has had enough time to summarize it for this issue [I don't know if "summarize" is the right word <laugh> but I did my best...and it's in this issue!]. If not we will soon.

This month we will also have an exciting program as Roger Zelazny has agreed to be with us for an interview. This is a great opportunity to learn more about the man behind the stories. Come prepared with questions.

If you haven't yet filled out the SFSFS questionnaire we sent out last month, please do so now. We are looking for not only general feedback but also specific ideas to make SFSFS better for you. From a preliminary examination of the ones received so far, it would appear that the stars are in our future, or at least a trip to the planetarium.

See you at the March meeting.

- Joe Siclari

Editorial Quickie:

<whew!> Apologies for the lateness of this issue.
I was waiting on the confirmation from Mr. Zelazny.

Well, here I am again...back at the computer as an editor for the Shuttle...this "multiple-hat" wearing business is quite tiring. I'm still learning, so I'm asking for a little patience. Of course, you could also try your hand at editing this, but you'd have to talk to the senior editors...for the go-ahead...I'm just making the offer...I didn't say I was authorized to do it...<g> (ah, the joys of uncensored editing...I might get fired...)

Hope to see y'all at the General Meeting! It promises to be lots of fun and very informative! Ciao!

Utopia according to SFSFS

by Magpi

All present sentient beings were active participants in the interactive collaboration of "World Building: Creating a Utopia." The membership (and two guests. Hi, Christina and Mark!) was randomly assigned to one of five groups [Biology, Culture, Technology, Politics, and Environment] dealing with various aspects of world building. In the sections below, I have listed the ideas that a representative from each group presented . . . after approximately fifteen minutes of intense brainstorming.
Biology: There were two options for humans of the SFSFS Utopia.

1. Shapechangers with the abilities to:

- change gender;
- have some control over weight/ metabolism rate;
- correct for any internal problems that manifest as illnesses;
- alter physical appearance and internal plumbing; [i.e. Could have the digestive system of a cow and be the ultimate vegetarian!]; and
- recognize each other by distinctive and unique chemical scents.

BUT, the true mass and density of an individual would remain the same. [which would mean that if you wanted to be a fly on the wall...you could, but you'd be a fly that weighted whatever your true weight is...no miraculous weight loss would occur because you morphed into a "small" form...]

2. Non-Shapechangers. We'd still keep the same bodies, but there would be improvements on the current design. Namely, we would be able to:

- control our own sex drive and fertility;
- get rid of things, like wisdom teeth, the appendix, and other non-essential body parts;

- change the shape of eyes so that glasses would not be needed to correct vision;
- have heightened senses and have the ability to detect electromagnetic fields;
- see men carrying and giving birth to babies; and
- eliminate PMS.

Additionally, the Biology group addressed the situation of current thought processes...so that people in the Utopia would no longer be in a dichotomy thinking mode where everything is "either or". They also arranged for people to have an improved probability sense...which would eliminate the desire for gambling.

Culture. A potpourri of ideas flowed forth from this group...and here they are! Their motto was "Cut some slack."

- Hormone control that would result in painless puberty and No PMS.
 - Perpetual family leave for those who want it.
 - No birth defects--health for all.
 - New style families--monogamy, polygamy and polyandry, marriage is optional.
 - No pedophilia or child abuse
 - Conception by intent only; via a pill that really works all the time.
 - A "Gilligan's Island" for violence offenders (located in Eurasia?!)
 - No war or violence.
 - Optional mentors for kids and adults [people who would lend support and guidance for those who want or need help/assistance]
 - Improved technology for pleasure and education
 - The option to work anywhere one is capable of working.
 - A system where worth and pleasure would be found or gained from personal achievement on job (worth/pleasure would be the incentive for working).
 - Easily locatable communities where people with common interests reside or frequent.
 - A different culture on "the other side of the tracks" for us to compare ourselves to..
 - An increased tolerance for all religions.
 - And a way where a mother would be able to receive financial compensation for being a mother.
- Technology. Okay...so they kinda dropped the ball and withstood all the joking quite well...all things considered...well, this is what they proposed the Utopia would have:
- a nanomite that could be injected into everyone. That nanomite would contain practically everything there is in the way of books and movies and sensations, etc.; which would result in:
 - a world were everyone one would live in a self-contained reality/world limited to the confines of their own imagination.
- Politics. Yet another area that did not leave me with much in the way of notes...basically because they had come up with a "easy solution." This is the it:

- the replacement of governments with "self government."

<sigh> Of course, not everyone in the group agreed, but certain opinions won in the end. Peggy did come up with the suggestion that criminals should be hooked up to the Virtual Reality that was proposed by the Technology group.

Environment. My group...and the one I had to speak for (yes, there is a big "V" stamped on my head...you just can't see it unless you are looking specifically for it!). After much discussion, it was decided that the world was fine the way it was...it only needed some minor adjustments. And, this is what the adjustments should be:

- transportation that was done entirely by fusion or solar-powered vehicles and/or stable-trained [i.e. they know when and where to unload excess mass] horses;
- a world without weeds;;
- self-contained islands for distinct and desired environments;
- houses with lightning rods that would be able to collect energy and charge batteries that would power the house's internal workings;
- suitable warning of 24 hours or more prior to any naturally occurring disasters...so that people can decide whether they want to teleport their houses to those pre-destined plots out in the Dakotas and Montana;
- mountains that are able to "heal" themselves at the end of the day from human abuse;
- a freshwater ocean on the West Coast [I still don't grasp the rationale behind this one, but it's on the paper, so I'll include it!]; and
- self-regenerating natural resources.

This interactive discussion/meeting/program was terrific and I hope that we plan on doing something like this again!

Letters Of Comment

Dear Judy,

I disagree with Sheryl Birkhead's cartoon assessment of the SFSFS Shuttle being for the birds. Her creatures look more like retarded pterosaurs anyway.

Congratulations to Phil and Barb Tortorici on the second born. Procreativity obviously runs in the family.

I recognize Peggy Ranson's saucer and exploding planet fillo. The original is hanging on the wall of my living room.

Best wishes,

Dear Editor (and Other Interested Parties),

Well, the February Meeting is coming up and I find that I've been a member of SFSFS for a year now. So I thought it would be appropriate to LOC a few thoughts.

Upper most on my mind is one word: THANKS! As I think back over the last year, most of the good times seem to have involved the Society. The past five months or so have been a bit rough, and our assorted activities were crucial in getting me through it all. I've enjoyed most everything we've done and all I can say is "more, more, more."

I particularly want to thank Joe & Edie for all the nice things they've done, and for making me feel a part of the family. And a bow to Peggy and Carol for lending their mighty thews [thews...okay...fine...] toward my move. I don't know what I would have done without you.

A few words regarding Tropicon XII: I thought it was a great convention. Other than attendance being down, everything seems to have gone pretty well. There's really no cause for the finger pointing that appears to have been going on. Let's work harder on promotion, yes, but we're doing good stuff. (And anyone caught dumping on Shirlene will be strapped down and forced to watch Viper.) [Hey, I LIKE that show! <g>] In any case, I had a good time -- despite undergoing nuclear meltdown (thanks Cyndy!).

The Shuttle is doing very well. I think the decision to split the editorial duties among several people was a good one. Not only does it spread the burden a little, but it also provides opportunity for variety. I hope the editors will each try to put his/her personal stamp on their issues. [oh, believe me...I'm trying! ;>] As for the rest of you: SUBMIT! [Yo, Edie, Joe, Fran and Judy! I think we found ourselves another editor... <g>]

By the look of things, 1994 is shaping up to be a good year. I'm looking forward to it. Viva SFSFS,

"The Test"

by Rita F. Sheinblatt

Timothy clutched the pencil in his hand and prayed. With every fiber of his body he prayed. He did not pray to any one god. It was not the god who was important to him at that point; it was the prayer.

"Please, please!" reverberated in his mind. He stared at the paper on his desk. The title "Geography Test" pulsed before his eyes.

"Please, please, let whatever answers I put down be right. Please do not let me fail again. Please, please, let whatever answers I put down be right."

His fingers curled about the pencil. Lead flowed forth as the blank spaces filled with his answers. England is in the Pacific Ocean, Japan is bordered by California on the West Coast, Australia is just off the coast of South America....

Unnoticed, the small classroom globe changed its surface pattern, rearranging the flow of colors representing continents, oceans, and countries.

Timothy put down his pencil and sighed. He flexed his fingers and shook out the tension gathered in his hand. One test down and another one to go. The bell rang. Well, time for math.

Request for E-Mail Addresses.

<pause for a hat switch> Hi, SFSFS Sec. here. I am currently in the process of identifying all current members who can be contacted via e-mail. This list will be printed in a future issue. There are three ways of informing me about this: 1. tell me at the next General meeting; 2. call me and leave a message on my machine; or 3. Book Review

The Hollow Man by Dan Simmons
 Bantam Books; Paperback = $5.99
 ISBN#0-553-56350-5
 Review by George Peterson

What is it with horror writers?

Early on in his novel The Hollow Man, Dan Simmons reflects on how Jerry Bremen, his protagonist, dislikes melodrama. "...Bremen always found the situations unlikely to the point of absurdity, the actions and the character's reactions unbelievable, and the melodrama banal in the extreme." At certain points in the reading of The Hollow Man, I wished that Bremen's creator shared a bit of this attitude. Especially the scenes involving the cannibal woman.

This is not to say that The Hollow Man isn't an excellent novel. In fact it's one of the best stories involving telepathy that I've seen in quite a while. But it loses something when Simmons' horror-writing tendencies kick-in.

Jerry Bremen has a problem. A telepath since he was a child, Jerry has been married to another telepath, Gail, for many years. They've shared a marriage in mind, as well, using their combined powers to help screen out an all too intrusive world. But now Gail has just died of cancer and Jerry is both more alone than he has ever been, and not alone enough. Unable to deal with the remnants of his former life, he heads for parts unknown, burning his bridges behind him. Strangely vulnerable despite his powers, Jerry's odyssey leads through the darkest corners of the world and the human mind, to an apocalyptic encounter with a blind, deaf, and retarded child.

However, there is much more to this story than darkness and melodrama. Alternating with the adventures involving drug dealers, child molesters and ordinary people, is a very technical and thought-provoking speculation regarding the nature of mind and reality, consciousness and alternate worlds. Not to mention some very romantic writing. Indeed, The Hollow Man seems to be composed of equal parts of horror, hard sf, and love story. For me, the first two chapters and the last sixty pages made this novel worth while. I just wish there was less of the horror.
